He is based in Leech Tishman's Pittsburgh office, where he will represent diverse clients in a variety of complex civil and commercial litigation.

Additionally, Sampson routinely assists cannabis dispensaries, REITs and other cannabis-related businesses with various insurance coverage and risk management matters.

In addition, Sampson has experience working with and representing Old Order Amish families across the U.S. In that regard, he has advised Amish individuals denied U.S. permanent resident status due to their religious beliefs and has litigated against, and negotiated with, the U.S. government to resolve these disputes.
