Defamation: Libel, Slander, and Commercial Disparagement

Leech Tishman's Defamation: Libel, Slander, and Commercial Disparagement Group has extensive experience representing clients in defamation cases.

Leech Tishman's lawyers have a successful track record in trying and winning defamation cases in Federal and State Courts. Over the years, our Defamation: Libel, Slander, and Commercial Disparagement Group has represented individuals who have suffered damage to their personal and professional life as a result of defamatory statements, as well as companies charged with defamation or commercial disparagement.

Our lawyers are also experienced in litigating cases asserting libel, which are false statements through written words, including printed publications, online platforms, and social media; as well as cases asserting slander, which are false oral statements about the character of another person.

As members of our Litigation & Alternative Dispute Resolution Practice Group, our attorneys have experience trying libel, slander, and commercial disparagement cases in the courtroom, as well as before administrative bodies and arbitration panels. We understand the time, effort and cost involved in litigation, and when possible, we work through engagement in active negotiation with the opposing party or through alternative dispute resolution proceedings.

Our attorneys are members of the Academy of Trial Lawyers and the Litigation Counsel of America, and have been recognized in Best Lawyers in the practice of Litigation.
