Leech Tishman's Real Estate Practice Group has significant experience in the areas of transaction, litigation, dispute resolution, and policy. Our attorneys are skilled in navigating the complex real estate landscape in New York, representing clients in both out-of-court proceedings and in front of judges across the state.

We have a depth of experience representing clients in court, settlement negotiations, and before the New York Attorney General's office, in many cases receiving a favorable outcome.

Our attorneys assist clients in all stages of the development and sale of cooperatives and condominiums. Successful counsel in this area requires a keen understanding of the complex, ever-changing laws and regulations that impact business, and thoughtful attention to risk management strategies that preserve the client's financial portfolio.
