

Secured Transactions

Leech Tishman counsels secured creditor clients in the development and oversight of their security interests involving collateral, such as inventory, equipment, investment properties, instruments, and accounts receivables.

Our attorneys are experienced in drafting complex secured transactions contracts, designed to protect the client's financial interests and assets by seizing collateral in the event of a debtor's loan default or bankruptcy. We have a depth of experience representing corporate clients with respect to secured transactions both domestically and internationally, often counseling clients on a range of issues that could affect these contracts, such as changes in the name or location of a debtor, transfers of collateral, and maintaining liens. We are skilled in drafting security agreements tailored to our clients' specific needs and financial objectives, with a heavy focus on risk assessment and risk management.
