LEECH | TISHMAN

Traditional Labor Law

Leech Tishman has a thorough understanding of highly complicated and robust traditional labor law matters, having dealt with virtually every legal question concerning labor laws, labor relations, and union contract negotiations.

Our attorneys represent public and private sector employers in a range of labor issues in state and federal courts across the country, arbitrations, as well as the National Labor Relations Board. Leech Tishman has a sound reputation for being proactive and aggressive in defending clients against unfair labor practice claims in a cost-effective, timely manner.

Our labor attorneys take an active role at the collective bargaining table, representing employers in a wide range of industries, including healthcare, hospitality, construction, manufacturing, education, and local government.