Our firm regularly assists a range of aesthetic medicine providers with a variety of legal issues, including regulatory compliance, reimbursement, business strategy, and emerging technologies.

Leech Tishman Nelson Hardiman has been a long-time advisor to the aesthetic industry, including plastic surgeons, cosmetic dermatologists, medspas, and cosmetic product developers.

Our firm played a significant role in the development of content for the American Med Spa Association and has been consulted by state regulators for input on emerging risk and enforcement issues related to new technologies and industry trends.

Our attorneys have guided medical providers, including early-stage companies and large, nationally recognized organizations, on a number of issues related to healthcare compliance and commercial regulation. We provide counsel regarding business and finance structuring, scope of practice, supervision of medical practitioners, licensing, and guidance pertaining to OSHA, HIPAA, anti-kickback and marketing laws, and state-specific corporate practice of medicine (CPOM) requirements.

As nutrition, injectables, dietary counseling, and anti-aging care proliferates, Leech Tishman Nelson Hardiman advises not only service providers but also numerous cosmetic and nutritional supplement product manufacturers and retailers on FDA and state compliance.
